

Cast a spell at the ball

For today's Cinderella there is no shortage of finery to turn her into a fairy princess, says Lisa Grainger

Shirley Jackson and modern style suit, $2,000; Poiret Party (0171) 400 8470; White Feather (0171) 216 216; Party at Elizabeth Street by GPOA, 60 Elizabeth Street, SW1 1EJ (0171) 214 0202; Model's make-up by Pique Hair, £120; Ferragamo, see page 10

Fashioning an image by not just a look, a full-on personality and an overall attitude, Diana is one of the hottest personalities in the fashion world. As a principal dancer with English National Ballet, she is one of the few models of her age who has a real career. She has a real career as a singer and actress, and she has a real career as a model. The fashion world is full of models and actresses, but she is also a model with brains. She says, "Oh, she has left from her fairy godmother, but she gets out and get what she wants."

When it comes to dressing for a ball, Diana is a woman who knows what she wants. She is not just a model, she is a woman who knows what she wants. She is not just a model, she is a woman who knows what she wants. She is not just a model, she is a woman who knows what she wants.

It is not just a model, she is a woman who knows what she wants. She is not just a model, she is a woman who knows what she wants. She is not just a model, she is a woman who knows what she wants. She is not just a model, she is a woman who knows what she wants.

THE TIMES WEEKEND

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1998