

FOLLOWING HER HEALTH SCARE
PRINCESS
MARGARET
AN INSIGHT INTO HER UNIQUE POSITION IN THE ROYAL FAMILY

HELLO!
NUMBER 499 • MARCH 7, 1998 • £1.35

AN INSIGHT INTO HER UNIQUE POSITION IN THE ROYAL FAMILY

PEARCE FIONDA

PEARCE
FIONDA

LONDON FASHION WEEK

COUTURE TAKES TO THE CAPITAL'S CATWALKS

London's international fashion pack braced to the grounds of the Natural History Museum in South Kensington for the capital's designer autumn/winter 98/99 catwalk shows. With more than 50 shows in five days, this was a style marathon, and all the big-name designers were there. First onto the runway was the delicately crafted collection by Hypoth Gibson, who mixed commercial appeal with cutting-edge glamour. New boy on the block Matthew Williamson showed that his debut collection last season was no flake in the pan, introducing snowflakes onto silk, wax knots modelled by Julie Jagger, daughter of Rolling Stone Mick Jagger. Vivienne Westwood, the original 'rock chick' specialist, combined her love of the theatrical with design details reminiscent of her punk days for her 'Red' collection. Antonio Wakerby and Charlie Booth favourite Simi Zilkha wowed audiences with eye-to-eye men's collections, while design duo Fionna Fionna and Clements Ribeiro confirmed their star status.

The celebrity crowd was as high as ever, with Felicity Kendal, Lily Bayle and singer Belinda Carlisle all keeping tabs on what's hot and what's not. Madonna is also in town, with more's more's her material girl making a beeline for Antonio Wakerby's show.

Fashion report by Anne Dyer. Photos by Chris Moore-Ross