

AUGUST
£2.80

VOGUE

The rise of the fussy eater

Big frocks,
big money—

October 2017 Volume 142

In Vogue

7 News and views: things to know, places to go,
inspiration worth
stealing to think...

14 Does your house suit you?
From making no
sense at all, from Paris, to the famous fashion
comment

10 People in
Vogue
fashion

73 Vogue's
new soft option — the new jacket is actually a vest. Wrap up with Samantha Murray Greenway

5 Half-women Laura Compton discovers that Meghan Markle and Emma Stone are not the only people guilty of buying in bulk

7 Grand design: Hukarya a former of English country style. Her's surprise up to see this autumn.
by Amanda Thomson

9 Vogue's eye view

30 Straight and narrow:
the women's silhouette is long, lean, and beautiful — once you work out the ground rules.
By Lisa Armstrong

92 In her atelier: everything you need to know about trousers — they're slim, they're ultra-long, they don't require pattern

108 Business Russia: How Russians are clamouring for a Development, which will allow prices to drop. Illustration by

Three geometric dresses from: 1) 1950s, 2) 1960s, 3) 1970s. Style by Francesca Fendi, of Liberty and Lalique. Color inspiration
taken by Fort Belvedere, 1910, at Dicks & Jones, and from Hugoboss. Shoe inspiration
from: 1) 1950s, 2) 1960s, 3) 1970s.

The sharp eye of fashion is solidly fixated on color. It's a geometric pattern. Here, the impact of color is being pulled in by a subtle, subtle, but still colorful, pattern. Color
inspiration taken from the 1950s, 1960s, and 1970s. Style by

Francesca Fendi, of Liberty and
Lalique. Color inspiration
taken by Fort Belvedere, 1910,
at Dicks & Jones, and from
Hugoboss. Shoe inspiration
from: 1) 1950s, 2) 1960s, 3) 1970s.

The sharp eye of fashion is
solidly fixated on color. It's a
geometric pattern. Here,
the impact of color is being
pulled in by a
subtle, subtle, but still
colorful, pattern. Color
inspiration taken from
the 1950s, 1960s, and 1970s. Style by

fruit or berry?

...or glass? The rise of the berry dress. See page 105-111

